Introduction

The following categories of offences will assist the reader in understanding the basis for the gathering and allocation of specific statistics within this report.

Types of Offences

Violent offences are crimes involving the application and/or threat of force to a person. These include: murder, manslaughter, abduction, sexual assault, assault and robbery.

Property offences involve unlawful acts with respect to property but do not involve the use or threat of violence against an individual. These may include: theft, possession of stolen property, break and enter and fraud.

Other Criminal Code offences include Criminal Code offences that are classified as neither violent nor property offences. Examples are: prostitution, gaming and betting, mischief, offences against public order, and bail violations.

Drug offences involve offences under the Controlled Drugs and Substances Act. These offences are: possession, trafficking, importation or cultivation of various illicit, controlled and restricted drugs.

Other federal statute offences include violations under all other federal statutes. They include; the Bankruptcy Act, Customs Act, Excise Act, and Immigration Act.

Provincial Statute offences include all violations under provincial statutes except Criminal Code traffic related statutes. Examples are: Coroner's Act, Environmental Protection Act, Mental Hospital Act and Liquor Licence Act.

A Word of Caution

This document details statistics which represent levels of activity relating to certain types of crime. It is important to note that these statistics are only valid within the specific framework in which they were gathered. They should not be compared to statistics from other agencies which may appear to report on similar issues. For example, Statistics Canada records only the most serious offence at a specific incident, whereas the Toronto Police Service records all offences at that same incident. Attempts to compare the two statistics is an apples and oranges exercise.

Overview of Statistics, 2001

- Reported Criminal Code Offences excluding traffic offences went up 2.8% in 2001 over the previous year.
- Violent crime went up 4.0% in 2001 from 2000.
